Intangible Cultural Heritage

A screening of funding opportunities in the EU

The “Fondazione Santagata for the Economics of Culture” was founded on April 13 2018, on initiative of the Silvia Santagata Research Centre (CSS-EBLA).

The Foundation gathers all the know how and experiences of CSS-EBLA and of the studies activities carried out by Walter Santagata.

The Foundation’s working themes are the following: a first one linked to the models for the management of cultural heritage, with a specific reference to the economic dimension of development and to UNESCO related programs, and a second one linked to the production of culture and cultural innovation. Furthermore, the Foundation’s mission is to support the internationalization of Piedmontese and Italian economic and cultural operators.

Research Centre Silvia Santagata (CSS-Ebla) has been established in 2008 by Walter Santagata, Cultural Economics professor, very popular both in Italy and in the International community, died prematurely in 2013. CSS-Ebla is made of specialists, professors, researchers but also all those people who are interested in modern history of politics and economics, in cultural economics, in institutions and in creative atmosphere. In details CSS-Ebla is made of all those specialists who work in the area of Piedmont but that also co-operate with both Italian and International territories.

Introduction

Intangible Cultural Heritage is a significant force for 21st century Europe. The benefit of Intangible Cultural Heritage have most commonly been seen in terms of social cohesion and engagement as a way of bringing together communities.

In this report, focus is dedicated to European Funding Programmes that could include Intangible Cultural Heritage as topic. The aim is to analyse how the European Union, as an organization expanding in the culture field and developing its cultural policy, reacted to the protection and preservation of Intangible Cultural Heritage. In addition, it gives some concrete examples of how European projects could involve the intangible sphere. It is evident, that EU policy in the field of Intangible Cultural Heritage has been, until now, insignificant and not specific in comparison to other areas of its activities.

The report suggest that Intangible Cultural Heritage has been a positive economic, social and environmental driver. Innovative financing, public private partnerships, crowd-sourced funding, philanthropy and many other innovative and creative approaches have been taken to releasing the locked-up potential of Europe's intangible heritage.

The UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage Convention

The term “cultural heritage” has changed content considerably in recent decades, partially owing to the instruments developed by UNESCO. Cultural heritage does not end at monuments and collections of objects. It also includes traditions or living expressions inherited from our ancestors and passed on to our descendants.

The Intangible Cultural Heritage means “the practices, representations, expressions, knowledge, skills – as well as the instruments, objects, artefacts and cultural spaces associated therewith – that communities, groups and, in some cases, individuals, recognize as part of their cultural heritage. This intangible cultural heritage, transmitted from generation to generation, is constantly recreated by communities and groups in response to their environment, their interaction with nature and their history, and provides them with a sense of identity and continuity, thus promoting respect for cultural diversity and human creativity”. (Article 2, 2003 Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage).

The Intangible Cultural Heritage is manifested in the following domains:

1. Oral traditions and expressions, including language as a vehicle of the intangible cultural heritage;
2. Performing arts
3. Social practices, rituals and festive events;
4. Knowledge and practices concerning nature and the universe;
5. Traditional craftsmanship

The Convention gives measures aimed at ensuring the viability of the intangible cultural heritage, including the identification, documentation, research, preservation, protection, promotion, enhancement, transmission, particularly through formal and non – formal education, as well as the revitalization of the various aspects of such heritage.

Safeguarding Intangible Cultural Heritage is about the transferring of knowledge, skills and meaning. Transmission – or communicating heritage from generation to generation – is emphasized in the Convention rather than the production of concrete manifestations such as dances, songs, musical instruments or crafts. Safeguarding measures must always be developed and applied with the consent and involvement of the community itself.

For safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage at national level, each State Party shall take the necessary measures to ensure the safeguarding of the heritage present in its territory. Each State Party shall endeavour to:

- adopt a general policy aimed at promoting the function of the Intangible Cultural Heritage in society, and at integrating the safeguarding of such heritage into planning programmes;
- designate or establish one or more competent bodies for the safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage present in its territory;
- foster scientific, technical and artistic studies, as well as research methodologies in particular the Intangible Cultural Heritage in danger;
- adopt appropriate legal, technical, administrative and financial measures aimed at: fostering the creation or strengthening of institutions for training in the management and the transmission; ensuring access to the Intangible Cultural Heritage; establishing documentation institutions for the Intangible Cultural Heritage and facilitating access to them.

At the international level it was established a Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity.

The safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage involves cooperation at the bilateral, sub regional, regional and international levels. UNESCO granted International assistance with supporting programmes, projects and activities. A “Fund for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage” is hereby established. The resources of the Fund shall consist of: contributions made by States Parties; fund appropriated for this purpose by the General Conference of UNESCO; contributions, gifts or bequests. The States Parties shall lend their support to international fund-raising campaigns organized for the benefit of the Fund under the auspices of UNESCO.

PART 1

EU Funding programmes (2014-2020)

European funding programmes are listed according to their respective thematic areas:

1. Security and citizenship: includes justice and home affairs, border protection, immigration and asylum policy, public health, consumer protection, culture, youth, information and dialogue with citizens.
2. Smart and inclusive growth: competitiveness for growth and jobs; economic, social and territorial cohesion.
3. Sustainable Growth: Natural Resources: includes the common agricultural policy, common fisheries policy, rural development and environmental measures.
4. Global Europe: covers all external action by the EU such as development assistance or humanitarian aid with the exception of the European Development Fund which provides aid for development cooperation with African, Caribbean and Pacific countries, as well as overseas countries and territories.

For each thematic areas are listed programmes that have topics and objectives about Intangible Cultural Heritage. For each of these programmes it provides a description of basic features, such as objectives, policy areas, web references, budget-line references.

Security and citizenship

CREATIVE EUROPE

Creative Europe

Policy area: Culture

Main objectives: The Creative Europe programme supports European cinema and cultural and creative sector. It supports ten thousands of artists, cultural professionals and cultural organisations in the performing arts, fine arts, publishing, film, TV, music, interdisciplinary arts, heritage, and the video games industry, allowing them to operate across Europe, to reach new audiences and to develop the skills that are needed in the digital age. By helping European cultural works to reach new audiences in other countries, the programme contributes to safeguarding and promoting Europe's cultural and linguistic diversity.

Specific objective:

- a) to support the capacity of the European cultural and creative sectors to operate transnationally and internationally;
- b) to promote the transnational circulation of cultural and creative works and transnational mobility of cultural and creative players;
- c) to strengthen the financial capacity of SMEs and micro, small and medium-sized organisations in the cultural and creative sectors in a sustainable way, while endeavouring to ensure a balanced geographical coverage and sector representation;
- d) to foster policy development, innovation, creativity, audience development and new business and management models through support for transnational policy cooperation.

RIGHTS, EQUALITY AND CITIZENSHIP

Policy area: Citizen's rights

Main objectives: The programme helps to make people's rights and freedoms effective in practice by making them better know and more consistently applied across the EU. It will also promote the rights of the child, the principles of non-discrimination (racial or ethnic origin, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation) and gender equality (including projects to combat violence against women and children).

Specific objective: to promote non-discrimination; to combat racism, xenophobia, homophobia and other forms of intolerance; to promote equality between women and men and gender mainstreaming; to prevent violence against children, young people, women and other groups at risk; to promote and enhance the exercise of rights deriving from citizenship of the Union; to enforce consumer rights.

Eligibility:

- Member states;
- European Free Trade Association (EFTA); countries which are parties to the Agreement on the European Economic Area, in accordance with that Agreement;
- candidate countries, potential candidates and countries acceding to the Union;
- International organisations.

HORIZON 2020

Horizon 2020

Policy area: Research and innovation

Main objectives: The Horizon 2020 programme aims to secure Europe's global competitiveness, strengthen its position in science and its industrial leadership in innovation by providing major investment in key technologies, greater access to capital and support for SMEs. The programme aims to tackle societal challenges by helping to bridge the gap between research and the market.

Specific objectives (priority societal challenges): this part responds directly to the policy priorities and societal challenges that are identified in the Europe strategy and that aim to stimulate the critical mass of research and innovation efforts needed to achieve the Union's policy goals.

- a) Health, demographic change and well-being;
- b) food security, sustainable agriculture and forestry, marine, maritime and inland water research, and the bio economy;
- c) secure, clean and efficient energy;
- d) smart, green and internet transport;
- e) climate action, environment, resource efficiency and raw materials;
- f) Europe in a changing world – inclusive, innovative and reflective societies;
- g) secure societies – protecting freedom and security of Europe and its citizens.

Eligibility⁶:

- Acceding countries, candidate countries and potential candidates;
- European free trade Association (EFTA) members or countries or territories covered by the European Neighbourhood Policy;

⁶ See "Focus on Country Eligibility", p.52

- countries or territories associated to the Seventh Framework Programme⁷.

Budget: 79 401,83 million

Website: <https://ec.europa.eu/programmes/horizon2020/>

Sub-programmes:

- Culturalbase

Objective: the project aims to address the proposed topic from a double standpoint, namely, an analytical as well as a public policy perspective. In the context of cultural digitization and globalization the entire cultural ecosystem has changed, which has radically altered - and at the same time, intensified - the relationship between cultural identity, cultural heritage and cultural expression. This transformation has occurred both at the level of the professional cultural sector as well as in society as a whole. The new challenges and the new potential of culture, where these three pillars - cultural identity, cultural heritage and cultural expression - intertwine, will be considered in the work of the platform along three axes: cultural memory, cultural inclusion, and cultural creativity. These are designed to research debates relating to heritage in the institutions and practices of cultural memory; how the focus on diversity and inclusion impacts on the practices of memory institutions, including on stakeholders and networks; what this reconfiguration contributes to new or post-national oriented narratives about identity and European values; and how heritage, cultural diversity and creativity relate in the context of huge cultural transformations such as the ones represented by digitization and cultural globalization.

- Traces

Objective: Transmitting Contentious Cultural Heritages with the Arts: From Intervention to Co-Production (TRACES) aims to provide new directions for cultural heritage institutions to contribute productively to evolving European identity and reflexive Europeanization. To do so, it deploys an innovative

⁷ FP/ was the European Union's Research and Innovation funding programme from 2007-2013. The current programme is Horizon 2020 but there are many projects funded under FP7 which are still running ethnographic/artistic approach, focused on a wide range of types of ‘contentious heritage.’ Attention to contentious heritage is crucial as it is especially likely to raise barriers to inclusivity and convivial relations, as well as to be difficult to transmit to the public. Transmitted effectively, however, it is potentially especially productive in raising critical reflection and contributing to reflexive Europeanization, in which European identity is shaped by self-awareness and on-going critical reflection.

Through rigorous and creative in-depth artistic/ethnographic research, TRACES will provide a systematic analysis of the challenges and opportunities raised by transmitting contentious, awkward and difficult pasts. It will do so by setting up Creative Co-Productions (CCPs) in which artists, researchers, heritage agencies and stakeholders work together in longer term engagements to collaboratively research selected cases of contentious heritage and develop new participatory public interfaces.

TRACES is a multi-disciplinary team, bringing together established and emerging scholars, and providing high-level expertise, relevant experience and creative energy, to provide a rigorous and innovative approach to the transmission of European cultural heritage.

EUROPEAN REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT FUND (ERDF)

European Union

European Regional Development Fund

Policy area: Cohesion policy

Main objectives: The ERDF contributes to the financing of support, which aims to reinforce economy, social and territorial cohesion by redressing the main regional imbalances in the Union through the sustainable development and structural adjustment of regional economies, including the conversion of declining industrial regions and regions whose development is lagging behind.

Supported activities: investment in social, health, research, innovation, business and educational infrastructure. Investment in the development of endogenous potential through fixed investment in equipment and small-scale infrastructure, including small-scale cultural and sustainable tourism infrastructure, services to enterprises. Networking, cooperation and exchange of experience between competent regional, local, urban and other public authorities, economic and social partners and relevant bodies representing civil society.

Eligibility: all Member states

Budget: 283,082 million

Sub-programme:

- Interreg Europe Cooperation programme

Objective: Interreg Europe helps regional and local governments across Europe to develop and deliver better policy. By creating an environment and opportunities for sharing solutions, it aims to ensure that government investment, innovation and implementation efforts all lead to integrated and sustainable impact for people and place. Interreg Europe supports actions that must fall into one of the following four categories: research and innovation; SME competitiveness; low – carbon economy; Environment and resource efficiency.

▪ Euromed Heritage

Objective: to facilitate the appropriation by people of their own national and regional cultural legacy through easier access to education and knowledge on cultural heritage. Euromed Heritage 4 (2008-2012) to meet this goal, a number of projects are funded for a three-year period. Each project brings together a leading organization and various partners from both the European Union and Mediterranean Partner Countries: Algeria, Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Palestinian Authority, Syria and Tunisia. Euromed Heritage 4 offers to selected projects a framework for exchanges of experience, channels for disseminating best practices as well as new perspectives for the development of the cultural institutional environment at national and regional levels.

MedMem

Objective: The audiovisual heritage of the Mediterranean is a resource of exceptional value and has the potential to initiate and promote understanding and intercultural dialogue throughout the region. This resource is mostly inaccessible and is at risk to deteriorate rapidly and therefore be lost forever. The safeguarding of most of available documents is still possible but needs urgent action. Towards this end, MedMem proposes a selection of more than 4000 videos from all around the Mediterranean, which will be showcased within their historical and cultural contexts and with a commentary in three languages.

Search possibilities for these files will be based on cross-referencing their thematic content. The sharing of technical and documentary tools, policies for safeguarding the audiovisual heritage, and good legal practices, constitute core activities of the project.

2.1 Foundations

Below are summarized some of international cultural foundations that have mission and topic on Intangible Cultural Heritage.

European Cultural Foundation

History: The European Cultural Foundation (ECF) was set up in Geneva in 1954, its founding figures included the Swiss philosopher Denis de Rougemont, the architect of the European Community Robert Schuman, and HRH Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands.

Mission: to support and connect cultural change – makers, focus on connecting culture, communities and democracy. ECF believes in the power of culture in building societies that are embracing these values. An example of their programmes and grants is STEP (Supporting Travel for Engaged Partnerships) that support creative and critical cultural workers traveling across Europe and its neighbours, to help foster a society with greater solidarity, equality and a stronger sense of social justice. In addition, ECF support an annual award, the ECF Princess Margriet Award for Culture, given to cultural change-makers whose highlights the importance of culture for an inclusive Europe

Countries of action: European countries

Website: www.eurocult.org

Anna Lindh Foundation

History: The Anna Lindh Foundation is an inter-governmental institution bringing together civil society and citizens across the Mediterranean to build trust and improve mutual understanding. It is co-financed by the 42 countries of the Union for the Mediterranean and the European Commission.

Mission: The Anna Lindh Grants Programme supports innovative projects involving jointly civil society organisations and networks from the South and North of the Mediterranean.

Countries of action: European countries and Mediterranean countries.

Website: www.annalindhfoundation.org

Asia – Europe Foundation

History: In 1996, the leaders of 25 European and Asian countries, with the European Commission, convened for the inaugural Asia-

Europe Meeting (ASEM). This historic summit paved the way for the establishment of the Asia – Europe Foundation (ASEF) in 1997, ASEM is funded by voluntary contributions from its member governments and shares the financing of its projects with its civil society partners across Asia and Europe.

Mission: ASEF promotes various forms of cultural cooperation between Asia and Europe, including policy dialogue, bi-regional networks and artistic collaborations.

2.2 Crowd funding

Crowdfunding is a way of raising money to finance projects and businesses. It refers to an open call to the public to raise funds, the crowdfunding platforms are website that enable interaction between fundraisers and the crowd. The platform provides a single place that isn't limited by geography or its capacity to engage a limited amount of people at a time, where fundraisers can send people interested in funding their project.

Scheme of crowd funding platform.

The different business models that are used by crowdfunding platforms can be grouped under the following broad categories:

- Investment. Based crowdfunding: companies issue equity or debt instruments to crowd-investors through a platform;
- Lending-based crowdfunding: companies or individuals seek to obtain funds from the public through platforms in the form of a loan agreement;
- Invoice trading crowdfunding: a form of asset-based financing whereby businesses sell unpaid invoices or receivables, individually or in a bundle, to a pool of investors through an online platform;
- Reward-based crowdfunding: individuals donate to a project of business with expectations of receiving in return a non

- financial reward, such as goods or services, at a later stage in exchange of their contribution
- Donation-based crowdfunding: individuals donate amounts to meet the larger funding aim of a specific charitable project while receiving no financial or material return
 - Hybrid models of crowdfunding: those that combine elements of the other types of crowdfunding

There are many advantages to crowdfunding, but there are also potential risks, they may include:

- Investors losing part or all of their capital or not getting the returns they expect;
- Dilution in the case of equity crowdfunding
- Inability to exit investments
- Insufficient information or inability to price correctly the securities invested in, or misinformation;
- Conflict and misalignment of interests between issuers, platforms and investors;
- Insolvency of the platform operators;
- Platforms may be used for illicit activities;
- Fraud and related reputational risk for platforms.

There are many similarities between crowd funding and other forms of online fundraising. Firstly both are performed through online platform, second, both types of fundraising utilise the “crowd”. Despite these similarities, there are two main things that distinguish crowdfunding from more traditional forms of online fundraising. Crowdfunding focuses on projects and its campaigns have targets¹³.

Case studies:

Keep Streets Live UK

A grassroots campaign to keep the streets and shared public spaces of the UK open to informal art and music performances, used reward-based crowdfunding to raise £3,285 from 133 backers to go towards paying legal and campaigning costs when they challenged anti-busking laws in the Court of Appeal. Rewards included badges, T-shirts and private music performances.

2.3 Corporate social responsibility

Corporate Social Responsibility is a management concept whereby companies integrate social and environmental concerns in their business operations and interactions with their stakeholders¹⁴. CSR is generally understood as being the way through which a company achieves a balance of economic, environmental and social imperatives, while at the same time addressing the expectations of shareholders and stakeholders. In this sense it is important to draw a distinction between CSR, which can be a strategic business management concept, and charity, sponsorship or philanthropy.

There are many definitions of CSR, the European Commission in its Green Paper “Promoting a European framework for corporate social responsibility” (18 July 2001) defined CSR as a concept through which the company voluntarily includes the social and environmental dimensions in their business operations and in their relationships with the stakeholders. Social responsibility of business is essentially a concept under which companies decide voluntarily to contribute to a better society and a clear environment.

Generally, CSR is often a concept linked to large companies, but also be considered a strategic tool to enhance the competitiveness of SMEs. Referring to an European programme about CSR, the European project DESUR¹⁵ (developing sustainable regions through responsible SMEs) want to improve regional policies, instruments and methodologies to promote responsible innovation in SMEs.

The growing interest in CSR has resulted in the establishment of a new awards and recognitions. The proposal of measurement indicators, the study of the perceptions of stakeholders or the inclusion of social and environmental criteria in the awarding of public contracts, so that CSR is not a passing fad, but a new way of understanding the role of the company in the society.

¹⁵ <http://www.desur.eu/>

A properly implemented CSR concept can bring along a variety of competitive advantages, such as enhanced access to capital and markets, increased sales and profits, operational cost savings, improved productivity and quality, efficient human resource base, improved brand image and reputation, enhanced customer loyalty, better decision making and risk management processes.

The benefits can be organized into three categories:

- Benefits that provide efficiency in the management.
- Benefits granted to the brand and company image.
- Benefits that accrue to company's values and environment.

The European Union has opted for a model of sustainable development and for CSR as an ideal tool for achieving it, the last European initiative is the new strategy of the EU 2011-2014 on Corporate Social Responsibility¹⁶.

Some of the most recognized organizations and private initiatives in Europe and other countries are:

- European Coalition for Corporate Justice (ECCJ). It promotes corporate responsibility gathering together different national organizations of civil society.

Case studies:

Ten Thousand Village (TTV) - Canada

Ten Thousand Villages is a non-profit corporation of the Mennonite Central Committee, an international relief and development agency based in Winnipeg, Canada. It provides vital income to Third World people by selling their handicrafts in stores across North America. The company works with artisans who would otherwise be unemployed or underemployed, providing them with both market and product development assistance. The income earned by the producers helps pay for food, education, healthcare and housing.

Interjero Erdvė – Lithuania

Interjero erdvė is an interior design exhibition centre. In 2011, it started the project “Didėja” with the aim to foster design and to develop Lithuanian design market. The still on-going project seeks to unleash the potential of the dialogue between young Lithuanian designers’ creativity and Lithuanian manufacturers’ capabilities in order to create innovative local products.

2.4 Collective property rights

One of the mean of valorisation of traditional cultural production is the approval of a bill assigning collective property rights to the products of local tradition, as in the eno-gastronomic sector.

The content of the goods produced in these areas is strictly connected to the local civilization and savoir vivre. Furthermore, the economic advancement of these products is naturally correlated with the local culture: the more their image and symbolic icon is identified with local customs and cultural behaviors, the more they seduce consumers and the more their production is fostered. In this case, the importance of culture is all-inclusive, mobilizing the aesthetic, technological, anthropologic and historic content of the district.

The property rights assignment mainly concerns the right to "denomination of origin" and the right to "indication of provenance", which both provide legal protection to a brand or a particular design.

The denomination of origin (DOC) (in Italian denominazione di origine controllata; in French AOC, appellation d'origine contrôlée) is a distinctive sign, usually the name of a village or locality, assigned to a product whose characteristics are deeply rooted in the local social and cultural environment or territory. The entitlement to use the word "DOC" offers a means of protecting the traditional wine-making practices of a specific well-defined region. DOCG - the denomination of origin controlled and guaranteed, while similar to DOC, is a more stringent sign of quality. The indication of provenance (in Italian indicazione di provenienza; in French Indication de provenance) is a distinctive sign, also usually the name of a village or locality, assigned to a product whose characteristics are deeply rooted within a local technique or to a particular production process performed in an area. This second type of protection is less intense and strict. It is usually used in reference to the field of "unfair competition". The denomination of origin gives rise to an exclusive right, namely to a monopolistic power which is shared among the producers located in one protected area.

In contrast to the two monopolistic rights just mentioned is the trademark, a feature typical of the market for reputation (Landes and Posner, 1987). While the trademark or the brand-name protects a single producer, the denomination of origin protects all the producers in a given place. The former is a form of individual protection, the latter is a form of collective protection. A third private way to enhance and disclose the reputation and quality of a product is to indicate the number and the value of prizes a product has been awarded. This policy was common among wine producers before the introduction of property rights.

The assignment of property rights yields particularly interesting positive consequences:

- as they create a monopolistic privilege, they allow an increase of prices and of yields, which contributes to a substantial accumulation of capital;
- legal protection generates incentives so that producers find their incentives in the investment and valorization of products that have been selected through a long cultural tradition;
- legal protection and economic incentives lead to better control of the productive and distributive process, with a remarkable increase in the quality of the products.

In economic literature, this way of organizing and protecting local cultural products, is identified with the label of Institutional Cultural District, thanks to Santagata, because it finds its foundation in the fact that formal institutions allocate property rights and trademarks to a restricted area of production.

Using the Institutional Cultural District as a policy instrument for local economic development is complicated because of its non-facilitating rigidities. The crucial requirements and necessary conditions for building it are, in fact, difficult to be found anywhere and its foundation is conditioned by the local socio-economic context.

An example

The Italian experience is meaningful and emblematic. In regions such as Piedmont-Langhe and Tuscany-Chianti the economic growth of well-circumscribed areas shows one decisive start-up factor: the approval of a bill assigning collective property rights to the products of local tradition, as in the eno-gastronomic sector.

For example, in the cultural and productive system of the Langhe-Piedmont, the economic and cultural impact of the allocation of property rights on enological production, has been wide.

Bottles of Barolo DOC

Source: https://it.wikipedia.org/wiki/Barolo_\(vino\))

The basic economic effect of the assignment of property rights marked the very outset of a massive process of capital accumulation: after the assignment and enforcement of property rights on Barolo wine as of 1992 (DOC Act, February 10, 1992, n.164), it can be noted that the price lead of the Barolo DOC over the general national price index was three time greater in the years 1993-98 (125.54% greater) than in the years 1985-92 (41.0%), considering the GDP deflator.

As concerns the industrial complex, many features are worth noting:

- a) High levels of technological innovation and dense dissemination of it among small-sized enterprises. The old traditional productive processes have been updated, incorporating scientific progress in chemistry and enology. Equipment and machinery for enological production have been developed.
- b) A larger and qualified labor market may take advantage of professional and managerial training in the field of enology,

- advertising, marketing, and communication. New training centers have been set up.
- c) The construction of public infrastructures, such as commercial centers, wine cellars, and common commercial structures for export.
 - d) The development of export practices and the international circulation of local products.

As concerns the cultural complex, innovations which have recently come to prominence include:

- a) The valorization of fairs and festivals linked to cultural local products and traditions. Local wines and other products, such as regional cuisine, foods, cheese and truffles, are presented to the general public in their cultural framework; these incorporate the pleasure of the table and the psychology of modern taste and the enrichment of the quality of life through local customs.
- b) The recovery of the historical patrimony of castles, country manors and houses.
- c) The use of the landscape as an economic resource.
- d) The cultural dissemination of eco-museums, cultural centers and wine cellars.
- e) The creation of cultural parks and tourist cultural itineraries through the literary and artistic local tradition.
- f) The development of the tourist-hotel industry.
- g) The institution of an International University of Taste in order to rediscover regional cooking and ancient crafts.
- h) And, in recent years, the inscription of the territory into the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites.

Analogous arguments may be made for the institutional cultural districts that are grounded on the economic exploitation of artistic and popular traditions, such as in the fields of music, the figurative and plastic arts, and designed goods.
